Before becoming an educator, I was trained in physical sciences and spent several years exploring the oil-rich seas around Africa, Southeast Asia, and Australia.

As an educator, my passion for delivering high-quality learning led me to partner with new technologies and into procurement. Currently I lead the operational team both in content creation and delivery of online products through instructor led training and SaaS websites.

It brings me great joy to witness the expansion of our business into teaching Sustainable Procurement. Sustainability has always been a passion of mine stemming from my previous career experiences.
